

What happens when faced with the feared object or situation?

Most experience almost immediate anxiety, which may move toward a panic attack. What often follows are behaviors designed to avoid the fear, which inevitably begin to limit one's freedom – sometimes to a very extreme extent.